V. New Club Application - UBC Students Offering Support

- Overview: This is a club that provides student led review sessions for other students. They offer crash courses in BIO, CHEM, MATH, and PHYS. The fee for this service goes to fundraising for Central and South America.
- In favour
  - AMS Club
  - Membership fee
  - Target audience is for science students
  - Source of cheaper academic aid for science students
- In opposition
  - No membership list → list only includes executives
  - Do not actually have general members in the club
  - Money is sent externally → Central and South America
Do not offer free resource for students

Final verdict: No, currently the negatives outweigh the positives in terms of supporting general science students.

VI. New Club Application - Third World Eye Care Society

- Overview: This club has philanthropic efforts to provide eye care to third world countries by fundraisers and collection of old glasses. They hope to inspire science students to pursue a career in optometry. They hope to collaborate with UBC Pre-Optometry (another SUS non-departmental club) for events in the future.
- In favour
  - Monthly volunteering events and opportunities for students at warehouse where there are optometrists and members of TWECS → sort glasses
  - Bring a new perspective for students that are interested in optometry and provide a “hands-on” approach
  - Gives students an opportunity to go to volunteer trips
- In opposition
  - Money leaves externally → third world countries

Final Verdict: Yes, they provide valuable opportunities to science students and meet criteria.
